Great Reduction in Tariff over Western Union Telegraph Lines.

The Modoc War Debt

To the courtesy of the editor of the Jacksonville Sentinel we are indebted for the subjoined, which is sent to us in advance of the issue of that paper It missed getting into yesterdays issue by reason of the editor of the OREGONIAN being confined to his room by sickness

The following information in reference to the expenses incurred by the Oregon Mounted Militia in their operations against the Modoc Indians is taken from the preliminary report of Maj R Quinn A Brooke, Asst Qr Mr General, Oregon Militia

The troops were disbanded on the 2d of February most of them having been in service since the 2d of December last, being 63 days Two dollars per day is allowed to each private for the time he was in the service and two dollars per day for the services of the animal on which he was mounted The allowances for pay of officers are in strict conformity to the provisions of the Act of Congress of July 15 1870 prescribing the present pay of the Regular Army The certificates or script that have been issued, embrace all claims against the service, whether for supplies furnished or service rendered and contain on their face a specific statement of all the facts and information necessary to a complete understanding of the whole transaction

The total war debt will not exceed $66 000 The total number of days service performed by officers and privates is not down at 7 600 This makes not quite $7 37 as the cost per man and horse for each day's service rendered The cost of the Indian war of 1865 6 was at the rate of $12 21 for each day's military service performed, and the previous Indian wars in Oregon of 1853 and 1854 were maintained at about a similar expense Besides, all the troops in the war of 1855 and 1856 were not mounted a considerable portion being infantry The cost of the Modoc war is, therefore, at least 34 per cent less than that of any previous war in Oregon And the militia service been conducted upon the expense basis of the previous wars an indebtedness would have been incurred of at least $35,100 This, therefore shows a saving to the State by judicious management as compared with the cost of previous Indian wars in Oregon, of at least $20 000 Furthermore, the entire service was performed in the winter, during all of which time the roads from this place to the seat of war crossing the Cascade mountains, was exceedingly bad, and at times actually impassable for teams carrying heavy loads Had the operations of the troops occurred during the summer months, at least 75 per cent would have been saved in the items of transportation and forage

No animals of any kind were purchased but the services of such as were indispensably necessary, were hired at reasonable rates All animals, how ever, on entering the service, were appraised by a board of appraisors and in case any animals were killed or lost in the service, scrip is issued to the owners in the amount of the appraisement

The report pays a merited compliment to Maj W A Owen for his indefatigable activity as Quartermaster to the First Brigade It also contains a price list of the articles purchased, and much other interesting information

Of course the allowances of two dollars per day to privates and for the services of their animals is not final, but is in the nature of a recommendation to the next Legislature, and subject to such modifications by that body as may be deemed just We earnestly trust, however, that these allowances will not be cut down On the contrary, in view of the inclemency of the season during which the troops were in the field, and the exposure and privations which they endured, it would be no more than just that the above rates of pay, so far as the men are concerned, should be increased.

The next Legislature should take prompt steps to meet the expenses of the Modoc war If there is not sufficient money in the State Treasury to meet an appropriation for its payment, an act should be passed authorizing the issuance of bonds in the required amount When this is done, the State of Oregon will have a just and valid claim against the General Government for indemnity, and it should be laid before Congress and pressed with untiring pertinacity until allowed

MODOCITIES

Gen Gillem is ready for another combat with the Modocs

Roads from Yreka to headquarters are very muddy and rough

The number of warriors with Capt Jack is now put down at only 13

There are several correspondents for various papers at the seat of war

Several saloons have been opened at army headquarters by Yrekans lately

A semi weekly mail will be carried between Gen Gillem's headquarters, leaving Yreka every Wednesday and Sunday morning

Capt Jack does not want anything to do with Case, Applegate or Meacham, but says that he will confer with Rosborough, Steele and Fairchild, whom he calls his friends

Frank Merrit, of Yreka, Cal, has received permission to open a sutler store at the military camp, in the Modoc section, and last week took out a stock of goods for the purpose

From the official report of Major Mason, commanding the battalion in the fight of Jan 17th, on the east side of the lava bed, we find the following list of the troops killed and wounded Company C—Killed, private John Bruner, wounded, privates Isaac Miller, Simeon Olson, Louis Boyer Wm Sullivan Chas G Ackerman, James Murphy Detachment of Company F attached to Company C—Killed, privates John Benson and Robert Long wounded, private Samuel T Jones Company B—Killed, privates Carl Gluman and James Monroe, wounded, Sergeant Josiah S Brown private Ole Anderson

"Very Sly, Joey Bagstock"

A Washington dispatch of February 10th, to the New York Sun tells us something about the sly schemes of the Bulletin's master Of course he is putting his wines and dinners where they will do the most good Here it is

There is a young Credit Mobilier here which is growing remarkably well The history of this new candidate for Congressional investigation is about as follows

Ben Holladay, the great original Ben has in some way obtained possession for a charter for a railroad in Oregon, and got rid of all the original stockholders. In other words, he has gobbled it He wants Uncle Sam to to give him a lift now, and to help carry his load by loading the government credit, and Ben, with all his old strikers is here to put the job through He goes about it in the ancient way and Johnny Wolcott is as happy as a big sunflower Sam Ward is grand master of ceremonies He invites the guests and arranges the bill of fare A series of splendid dinners has been given, and the best of members pretty well gone through with Last night the following distinguished gentlemen wined and dined regardless of expense

Roscoe Conkling James K Kelly, of Oregon Alexander Ramsey, A H Cragin, R W Hitchcock James P Wilson, C M James A. Garfield, C M, Augustus Schell, N P Banks J A Golladay of Tennessee, W P Frye, of Maine James B Beck, Austin Blair, A A Sargent, C U Kellogg, General S C Boynton, ex United States detective, Sam Ward G K Otis and old Ben himself

After everybody had eaten and drank to his stomach's content, Sam Ward called the meeting to order, and glowing eulogies on Ben the pioneer of civilization on the Pacific Coast, were made by Roscoe Conkling, General Garfield, and others

Mr. G W. Hobart has received his appointment as Postmaster at Dallas vice J. D. Lee, resigned.

Gen Milroy, Superintendent of Indian Affairs in Washington Territory, publishes a notice to the effect that all Indians not having the full right of citizenship, will be restricted to reside on their respective reservations after the first of March, except that trustworthy Indians having employment outside of the reservations may, upon the written application of the employers in charge, obtain a written leave of absence during the time employed, if they behave themselves On the first instance of bad conduct they will be returned to their reservations and punished

A Yankton (Dakota) paper announces the completion of the Dakota Southern R R to the city limits and revels thusly "Ring out, ye church and school bells, your loud pealing anthems of the skies Let your deep toned organs pour forth their thunderous harmonies Break forth into singing, ye snow clad hills of Yankton Roll on, ye ice bound 'Muddy,' and join the grand chorus with the thunder of thy mighty voice Skip for joy like juvenile muttons or diminutive William goats, ye over lasting chalk stone bluffs Shout your glad hallelujahs, ye joyous Yanktonians Burn your whirligigs and blue lights, fire your rockets and crackers, toot your tin trumpets, blow your shrill whistles and thump your lilliputian drums Let prairie and oak clad ravine, rock, river and buffalo berry patch, bottom, field and leafless growth of cottonwood, catch up the glad some sound—repeat the blissful strain, that the Dakota Southern has cemented Yankton with the outside world"

The Courier says "We learn that the little girl, who was about seven years of age, daughter of Reese Brower of Grand Mound died within five hours after the accident, and was buried yesterday Her clothing caught fire and in an instant she was enveloped in flames A sister only some ten years old was the only person near, and she displayed presence of mind and a stoical indifference to pain wonderful in one so young Her first movement was to get a bed spread and throw it around her little sister, and thereby smother the flames, but the little sufferer was so strong that in her agony she prevented the older sister from accomplishing her design Her next effort was to drag her sister out doors to a tub of water and force her into that, but there was so little water in it that she had to go to the well, draw a bucket of water and with that extinguish the flames All this she did before any other assistance arrived, and in so doing her own hands were terribly burned."

Mr Smalley writes from London correcting the blunder of those who say England cannot be hacked into a fight under any circumstances The English people, he says, are indeed anxious to avoid war so long as it is possible, but they will not surrender India, or allow their power in that quarter to be menaced He thinks it a mistake to suppose Englishmen have fallen off in fighting quality or fighting temper

Speaker Cornell has been treated pretty roughly by the assembly at Albany He refused to appoint any more than the absolutely necessary number of messengers, doorkeepers, and pages, but the members voted in two extra over his head, purely because they were clever fellows, and again it denied him the power to say what strangers should be admitted to the floor.

A Novel Discussion

The true poet as a recognized tutor of the race in much that pertains to the noble science of life His voice is oft most heard and felt when lifted up tender and sad for what we call in literature phrase the Higher Law Let him essay to teach great moral truth be they orthodox or heterodox no man may rightly question his divine commission, for Nature is his Alma Mater and his diploma is stamped with the signature of him who has been worshipped as the Great Poet He has the right of way through the vibrant able other Moral Philosophy Religion Æsthetics the arts and the sciences—all these are to him the universal domain in which he doth possess peculiar franchises Some of the grandest moral truths that have ever dropped from mortal lips are to be found in Young's Night Thoughts The exalted dignity of Job, the stately grandeur of Milton like the thread of victorious armies over the Appian pavement the melting tenderness of Dante, the dewy freshness of Chaucer and the terse majesty of Shakspeare—these have been and will continue to be the teachers of humanity The true poet is a man moved by divinest impulse and he of truest called a man, to breast the fondest, fiercest floods of earthly excitement, yet keep the soul 'pure as the naked heavens Such an one was Wordsworth, "whose soul was like a star and dwelt apart His path lies through the very highest regions of human thought and feeling, and there it must travel to move with its native stride

There is one realm which, to the poet, has hitherto been terra incognita—the realm of politics And he who ventures upon its borders at the first step leaves his vantage grounds behind —we are almost prepared to say he becomes a trespasser Mr Tennyson has essayed to become a politician in a mild way. He finds himself surcharged with a new dispensation of English colonial policy, and he must needs undertake a hazardous venture He finds his occasion in the declaration of the London Times—made shortly after the San Juan award to the effect—that "Canada is big enough, strong enough, and intelligent enough to look after its own business and if there be any deficiency in these points, it will be supplied by the education of self-reliance" In his "Ode to the Queen," which will be found in another column the Poet-Laureate reiterates the praises of the staunch loyalist, and makes fair effort to be severe when speaking of the loyalty of—

> That true North whereof we lately heard
> A strain to shame us—'Keep you to yourselves;
> So loyal is too costly friends—your love
> Is but a burthen' loose the band and go!

We cannot suppress a smile in thinking of the Poet-Laureate of England throwing down the gage of battle to the "Thunderer" in these ephemeral lines Mr Tennyson has ventured beyond the Pillars of Hercules, and if his frail shell be utterly swamped in the great deeps, can he complain? Or, if his sensitive spirit, grown tender in the plaintive mood of "In Memoriam," be wounded in the rough commerce of English politics, and he fly, shrieking, like Alphrastite of old from the plains of Troy—to the motherly kindness of his Queen, who shall say but that he will receive from that 'loyal North," gibes and jeers rather than wine and oil? The "Thunderer" has taken up the gauntlet, and we are sadly mistaken if Mr Tennyson escapes a sound drubbing for his rash interpellation He may not rely upon the buy and laurel won in other climes here they are exotics, and if they wither into forgetfulness the Poet-Laureate may blame himself alone At any rate we have promise of a remarkable battle indeed Tennyson is grown half as crabbed as reviewers would have us believe. The daring poet may learn at last ne sutor ultra crepidam.

To-day—March 4th—will be a grand gala day in our National Capitol The illustrious citizen who has for the second time been chosen to the high and responsible office of the Presidency, will be inaugurated amid the peaceful splendors which become an occasion so proud. Toward him the eye of the American people is turned this day. To him we shall look during the coming four years for that wisdom and valor which has made his name a tower of strength to the Republic He is welcomed to the dignity of this occasion by the acclamations of a united people We have strong faith in General Grant, and we sincerely believe that the ceremonies of this day are the auspicious omens of that peace and prosperity he has gained for us in his past bright career

Cyrus W Field writes to the New York Tribune that the directors of the Anglo American and Franch Atlantic and the directors of the New York, Newfoundland and London telegraph companies have reduced the tariff on dispatches between Great Britain, France and New York from $2 to 75 cents a word The new rate will take effect on the 1st of May Mr F. hopes that this reduction will cause an increase of business in which event the tariff will be reduced still lower

The Vienna Exhibition opens in May and the grand palace is already complete and many articles are being received This country in in the rear of all others with the preparation of its Departments, while it should have been the first to commence operations on account of our greater distance The American Commissioner is anxiously awaited but no certain time as far as it is now known has been fixed for him to leave this side of the Atlantic

The Boston Advertiser says that the Board of Aldermen of that city think that eight thousand dollars can be put to a better use than to pay for sending a model school house and furniture to the Vienna Exposition It says nothing about the traditional baby—the New England school marm

The ladies of St Louis have formed an association to procure the repeal of the 'Social Evil' ordinances They have petitioned the City Council to that effect and are working vigorously in the way of petitions memorials and remonstrances

Boston has a "Young Women's Christian Association," which is doing a noble work "for charity's sake" Already they have commenced the erection of a comfortable Home for Indigent Women

Froude, the historian, who pronounces the "on in his name, as 'oo in tool and who has just gone back to England has promised to write a series of brilliant historical sketches for Scribner's Magazine

A scientific luminary later than Darwin has discovered that the human race sprung from "Least Fungus" This accounts for the disposition of the race to rise in the world

Journals at the Hub are raving over a story published by Chicago papers to the effect that the Boston Chief of Police has just been married for the fourth time and a Boston detective has been married five times for breach of promise Pshaw That's nothing To have the editorial temper—which is proverbially sweet you know—sorely tried one need only ride a car on the Portland railroad for a week or two to have the strongest form of 'delusional insanity' superinduced by Oregon items in San Francisco journals The Herald is hell letter cord West and grave up with the country

There is a Yale College student who is credited with the remark that he had rather be born a Hebrew than Yankee College than to have Professor Tyndall's head on his shoulders He will do to keep company with the one who said he had rather be a door keeper in the tabernacle of Illinois than to dwell in the Sibley tent with the militia They are both bright youngsters particularly the former who has an eye to matrimony doubtless We fear the pancakes would burn every morning And yet the author of the yarn probably struck a general average of Yale students

General Butler's bill for the distribution of the Alabama fund divides the claimants into four classes as follows 1st The actual owners of vessels and cargoes destroyed or captured 2d The officers and seamen of vessels captured 3d The government of the United States as owners of ships of war destroyed by the confederate cruisers Congress has accepted General Butler's theory of payment The various insurance companies made a hard fight however and some of the word battles between Butler and Kerr are decidedly amusing

A San Francisco reporter tells about a New York belle who fled her native State to escape the blandishments of dry goods clerks went to the Bay City and fell in love with a Chinaman at first sight, on the plea, we suppose of "No one to love, none to caress" Rather caustic on San Francisco beaux, isn't it?

The New York Tribune of a recent date has the following hard one at the San Francisco press

It is said that in a certain California city where the newspaper proprietors are tied up with the various rings which afflict the country editorial writers have this standing order—"When in want of a topic pitch into the 'Mormons'"

English railways are experimenting and it is said successfully with a brake worked by electricity The invention consists of the application of electro-magnets, exerting a force of six hundred pounds, to pulleys on a swing shaft underneath the carriages By pressing a key the guard is enabled to bring the train to a stand-still

A gentleman living on Butte creek, Jackson county, named Michael Wooly, died rather suddenly on Thursday, Feb 20th It appears that he was engaged it carrying a log on his shoulder and had deposited it on the ground when he fell back a corpse. NEW YORK AND BROOKLYN

From our Regular Correspondent

BROOKLYN, N Y Feb 17, 1873

I left Congress at work on its billsand busy with its investigations, and came over to New York the other day going on board a sleeping car in the evening, and waking up, or being waked up at Rahway with the assurance that within half an hour or less we should be at Jersey City ferry We should have reached there by half past six but now half fallen while we slept and instead of the train that had pursued all day at Washington the world was clad in wintry white the skies were clear the sleigh bells were ringing over the country roads and the locomotive was making slow work of it shoveling off the ways We were two hours behind time all because the snows had accumulated and made locomotion a slippery business Finally we were on board the ferry boat and crashing through the ice of the North River then we poured into the encumbered streets of New York to find that sleighing was the fashion in the metropolis Winter is a nice thing to read about but not so pleasant to encounter in this Eastern climate

A LOOK AT THE CROWDS

It is wonderful to view the crowds that pour into and out of New York each day of the year increasing wonderfully as the years roll on It is estimated that four hundred thousand people pass into and out of the busy mart each day Ferry boats land from 500 to 1 000 passengers each for an hour or two in the morning and a continuous throng come all the day cars and trains from the main land pour down their quotas of tens of thousands steamboats come down the Sound and the North River from Staten Island and New Jersey and the influx continues until after noon and then the tide changes and rushes back whence it came, having accomplished during its ebb and flow the day's business of this wonderful metropolis The question as to how rapid and easy transit can be accomplished is the one that puzzles the wits of New York, and that imperatively demands solution The elevated railway is becoming more popular than formerly, and may do its work so well that more of them will be chartered and constructed The project of an underground railway was commenced but hangs fire of late, though it is still considered the correct thing for the convenience of the future It must be remembered that the business of New York is done on a comparatively narrow peninsula, and the question of how to cross the surrounding waters or how to come down the peninsula to the business center is the difficult one and to appreciate the difficulty you must stand for an hour, morning and evening, at the corner of the Park and Broadway, and watch the surging sea of people struggling one way in the morning and the other way at night, and see the vehicles that crowd the street between and makes its passage by a pedestrian a work of considerable skill and danger

A LOOK AT THE CITY

The Park was formerly fenced in with high iron railing and laid out in grass plats but the railing is now gone, the grass plats have vanished and paved spaces are there instead On the lower point of the Park stands the new Postoffice building not yet finished, in composite style of architecture and actually as magnificent as millions of money and architectural skill can make it In the midst of the Park stands the old City Hall, graceful and beautiful in its architecture, showing that the genius of Tammany, manifested in the new building above it a short distance, quite upon a par in fact, has not exceeded in beauty of design the taste of the city fathers so many years ago The new City Hall has been about ten years building, and is not yet completed Nearly ten millions were squandered on it besides what has been necessarily expended Derricks and tackle are yet in place to use in hoisting stone to finish it The presence of scaffolding detracts from the beauty of what is completed, and a walk around it show that the wings are beginning to look shabby and that the wood work is stained in the offices occupied, while yet the finishing touches remain to be put on the structure

A TOUCH OF NATURE.

A group of boot-blacks was standing between me and the new hall while I was moralizing upon the doings of Tammany, and as I moralized a scuffle broke out among them—the tools and fixtures of one blacking establishment went helter skelter, hither and yonder, and a boy's cap followed them One boot black was a victor and the other was a victim. The boy who triumphed fell back in a position of exalted repose the one who was discomfited crawled into his cap, gathered up his tools and made the best he could of his defeat When the future history of ward politicians and Tammany Sachems is made and chronicled, this heroic boy will be heard of again He has the elements of success, certainly, and by the time he has got control of a gin mill in the Bowery he will be in position to be effective as an Alderman, and an Alderman he may be

THINGS THAT HAVE BEEN

It must have been nearly forty years ago that I stood with friends old enough to take care of a small boy in a large crowd, and saw General Jackson land on Castle Garden and a grand procession form on the beautiful Battery and march up Broadway on his escort I remember well how Old Hickory looked, while beside him in the open barouche sat Martin Van Buren, with his bald pate and ever smiling countenance They rode up past what was then considered fine buildings, and through a beautiful street, and at the lower end was the little grass plat circled in with iron railing, so well known as the Bowling Green But within twenty five years a great change has come over Broadway The fine dwellings with their lordly occupants have gone the way of all the earth, and in their stead have raised palaces of trade more splendid in appearance than the gem created structure that came at the bidding of Aladdin's lamp One year after another the street that was beautiful as well as broad has become magnificent, and as one after another the old features have been removed art has wrought art to greet still more palatial edifices, and each builder sends his walls higher toward heaven and each facade shows more elaborately the skill of the architect, so that the designs of every age and clime almost are summoned to aid the ornamentation of Broadway, and not only Broadway but the streets adjoining it Here millions and tens of millions of wealth are piled up within sight, and for miles as you proceed up the island the scene astonishes you with a repetition of splendors that would still more astonish the earlier denizens of the present century if they could dismantle the old tombs of Trinity and St Paul's to gaze upon them.

RENTING OFFICES

We have often read the trite saying that the press is mightier than the sword Only a few days since I heard a distinguished lecturer account for the decline of oratory, on the ground that a power more potent has risen in the earth which would compel peace, or force the nations to the arbitrament of arms He alluded to the press Standing on Broadway, at the Park we see the Herald building on one corner, which was considered a few years since a most remarkable affair only shadowed now by the grandeur of the postoffice going up across the way, the most grand of all Broadway edifices and placed there to accomodate the mighty pen writings of the people Across the Park rises the Times building which proves very clearly the power of the press to command elegant quarters for the Times building is magnificent The Tribune building is close at hand, comfortable if not ostentatious and jaunty, them, from the corner of Center street, above, they can all look jealously upon the splendid facade of the Deutsche Zeitung for the Germans are all to support a journalism which elbows its way among the palaces of trade, and looks down only on its equals when it faces the best of them

Verily! In future when we boast of the power of the press we must not forget to add "It's all the same in Dutch."

ON THE BEAT IN TOWN

Time fails to paint the splendors of Fifth Avenue and the up town magnificence of Broadway. So we will take a 4th avenue car at the Astor House and ride to the Grand Central Depot at 42d street All the way for three miles, we see blocks of stores but I wish to show you the really beautiful and immense building A T Stewart is putting up as a home for sewing girls where they are to have the best possible accommodations at the cheapest rate All we go by 8th street don't forget to get a glimpse of the famous Cooper Institute whose all the great meetings are held and which is a grand monument of the splendid benevolence of dear old Peter Cooper But save your wonder for the end of the route for you will need a large supply to do justice to the lofty iron and bronze arch that roofs in the immense depot where all railroads disembogue and pour their living freight in a heaving tide upon the great metropolis I wish I could show it to you for then you would have in one single glance a chance to realize the constructive genius of Cornelius Vanderbilt

It is mentioned as a notable fact that no measure has been presented to Congress at its present session, on which there has been any thing like a strict partisan vote.

The State Temperance Alliance and the State Temperance Union

To the Editor of the Oregonian

My attention has been called to two articles in the Oregon Statesman in its issues of February 24th and 26th, in which the sage editor (?) of that paper expresses his fears that the Oregon State Temperance Union is hostile to and responds to supplant the Alliance What makes him so anxious about the Alliance? he is not a member of it has no sympathy in common with the earnest and devoted temperance men and women who compose it True his Good Templar education in former years sometimes gives him intellectual light on the subject of Temperance but usually he looks at the question darkly through colored glasses In his first article he attempts to hit me a rap while he stabs at the Union, and says 'President Ryan will hardly think of retaining both Presidencies To which will he adhere? I answer that, as a sound true, unfaltering friend of the Temperance cause believing its success is paramount to all other questions I shall adhere to both Again he says further We think that the people of the Union look upon his acceptance of the Presidency of their organization as practically an abandonment of the Alliance They don't the half enjoy or the half They know better In his next issue he takes back all the nice things he has written, and says 'Perhaps we did injustice to Mr Ryan in the remarks we made yesterday' Thank you Captain 'An open confession is good for the soul' But I don't look upon you as one of the Fathers in Israel at least in the Temperance cause Now all this whining and weeping by outside disinterested (?) parties don't amount to much, for all those sighs and lamentations are empty balder dash the creation of a disordered stomach—at least I am led to believe so after reading the report of the proceedings of the Alliance as published in the Statesman

If the Alliance has failed to produce any good results as yet to the Temperance cause it has had at least the effect to awaken a public interest—to bring together the true and devoted Temperance men and women from all sections of the State They came together without any previous understanding or concert of action they came together to compare views to discuss principles and to endeavor to secure unity of sentiment and unity of action, they came with strong convictions and strong prejudices, but with fearless hearts and determined purposes But with them, came Satan also, and the Alliance fell into the hands of those who, it was thought by some, really did not understand or could not realize the importance of the temperance work These men and women with hopeful desires and firm resolves believing that the temperance cause could not prosper as it ought to prosper until unity of thought, unity of purpose and unity of action had been secured, and not desiring to return to their homes without doing something to promote the principles they so ardently cherished, inquired, "What can we do more than we have done? what plan can we devise how shall we excite each other to new efforts?" and following quick upon these queries, "the keen spirit seized the prompt occasion," and they planned, resolved and executed, hence the formation of the Union. Not wishing to place themselves in antagonism to the Alliance, the organization of the Union was placed upon a different basis in its plans and in its manner of operating There can be no conflict with the Alliance Into the Union no man or woman can come until they take and subscribe to the total abstinence pledge of the society The Alliance doors are thrown open to all who seek admission Each can accomplish much good in the temperance field they can, and, we have no doubt, will work in unison together Their meetings will be held at different seasons of the year, and whatever misfortunes may befall the Alliance, the Union can profit by, and wherever the Union fails, the Alliance can find the remedy

The paramount objects of both are and should remain identical, and that is the creation of a lively and healthy public sentiment, and the securing of temperance legislation, for it is absurd to presume that temperance laws will enforce themselves if enacted, unless they are sustained by the enlightened sentiments of the people.

To me the temperance question is one of great importance I have had it forced upon me by the experience of years, by witnessing the evils, the misery and degradation produced by intemperance, and contrasting them with the blessings of total abstinence

I desire, if possible, to see the diverse and antagonistical temperance elements harmonized, so that we may be enabled to wage a ceaseless war fare against those gigantic evils that are destroying the peace and happiness of so many households May the Union and the Alliance labor kindly, continuously and persistently, hand to hand in this noble work, until the demon drink shall no longer revel in the green fields and fair gardens of our beloved Oregon. TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 4, 1873.

CITY.

SUBLIMITY.—A Californian who lately visited Portland, describes some of the scenery to be seen hereabouts, as follows:

"I am tempted to add a few words about the view of Mount Hood, Mount Adams, and Mount St. Helens, which I obtained from the hills just back of Portland, the morning after my return from the Dalles.

"The weather, which had been stormy for several days, cleared up during the night, and that morning the air was full of a depth of purity and transparency, such as it only has on the higher mountains, at rarest intervals and after storms.

"Those who have seen Mount Hood and Mount St Helens, know that both of them rise, like Shasta, towering, solitary and sublime, 5 000 to 8,000 feet above everything else around them. Mount Adams is said to rise in a similar way, and Mount Rainier is even grander still. But Mount Rainier is not in sight from here, being nearly in line with, and probably hidden by, Mount St. Helens. The base and the greater portion of the mass of Mount Adams were also hid from view by some high mountains which rise between, but its snow clad summit rose clean and high over all in the distance and sharply cut against the deep blue heavens.

"Yet the beauty and the majesty were in Mount Hood and Mount St. Helens. These stood revealed in all their outlines, but robed from base to crest in virgin snow, as pure and white as only the purest snow can be in sunlight such as this. The lower mountains and the forests far around the base of Hood were also white with snow, and there and there a rocky spur protruded from the snow high up the steep slopes of the peak itself.

"But up to the very foot of St. Helens swept the dark forests, without a speck of whiteness, and from their deep shades she rose in sharp cut, solitary majesty, the most symmetrical volcanic cone I ever saw, lifting her head to heaven, without a spot in all her robe of white—grand in her lonely altitude, unrivalled in stately beauty, and clothed in rare and radiant glory by the sunlight and the snow."

ALONG THE WHARVES.—But little activity is manifested along the wharves at present, only four vessels being at port besides the steamer.

One of the barks—Gemini—lies at anchor still abreast the bone yard. This vessel has not yet been chartered. Her destination is consequently unknown. Of what her outward cargo will consist cannot at present be determined. It is not improbable, however, that she will be chartered to carry hence a load of wheat to Liverpool or some other port of the United Kingdom. Until the matter is effected the Gemini will remain out in the stream.

The bark Penang having been chartered last week by Messrs. Hewett, Wilson & Co., to carry a cargo of grain to Europe, now lies at Flanders' dock. Her hull is undergoing such interior alterations to place the vessel in a condition to receive wheat on board. The vessel has been cleaned out, and dunnage is being placed in. She will begin to receive wheat soon.

The schooner Oregonian is lying at Flanders' dock discharging her miscellaneous cargo. The return cargo has not yet been determined, but will probably consist of flour or lumber.

At present the bark Northumbria lies at the east dock, where most of her cargo of grain was received. She will go down the river in a few days.

Freight was being discharged from, and received on the steamer Ajax yesterday. Her down freight promises to be unusually full. She will sail for San Francisco this evening at 9 o'clock.

The little schooner Katie Heron still lies at the foot of Salmon street.

WILL SAIL.—The steamship Ajax will leave our wharf this morning at 9 o'clock for San Francisco. The following passengers have secured berths for the voyage: J C Bountree, A Roberts, W L Hastings, Miss Annie Shindler, Miss J McNamara, Miss F A Dunbar, W D Pittinger & wf, Ben Selling, Henry Rosenfield, B Kohn, T C Elliot, W Darly, G L Greathouse, G S Hinsdale, E Howe, Miss Amelia Miller, Mrs Elliot, F Levy, wife and child; Gen J W Sprague, Geo H Clark and wife, Miss B A Owens, Mrs C Levy, Joseph Meyer, L Fox, Marks Wilsinski, Henry Ackerman, Ben Blumauer, M Jacobs, Isaac Blum, L Cline, N Baum, C H Meussdorffer, A S Pease, Marshall Blinn, wife and child; A Klosterman, E Young, Wm Madden, M Carey, C E Hunt, Mr Orchamvault, W F Jones, J Sanders, Miss E Nash, Rev P Dielsmann, Mrs L E Dodge, Miss F Miller, T O'Connor, Mrs Orchamvault and two children, Mrs C McCue, Mrs Hood.

OFFICERS AND CREW.—The following are the names of the officers and crew of the steamer George S. Wright, reported to be lost while on the way from Sitka to this port: Thomas J. Ainsley, Captain; E. F. Weidler, Purser; John Sutton, Chief Engineer; James Minor, Second Engineer; Daniel Noonan, First Mate; William Price, Second Mate; F. Clawson, fireman; Owen McGough, fireman; Edward Johnson, seaman, Asch Dunn, seaman; James Irwin, seaman; Gus Proffe, seaman; J. Jobson, seaman; Chris Adami, steward; Pedro Selvo, cook; C. Hevendeuh, waiter; Moses Baptist, pantryman; Indian James, mess boy; Indian Jim, coal passer; Indian Jack, coal passer.

LOGS.—The steam tug Ben Holladay will return down the river this morning as far as Rainier, to tow up the logs belonging to the lower mill. A large raft was towed up on Saturday last by the steamtug. Scattered along the river in several places are about 1,000,000 feet of logs which escaped from Holladay's mill months ago. The river having reached the proper stage the Ben Holladay will bring back all that remain of the lot recovered. Two trips will be sufficient to complete the job. Seven hundred thousand feet will be towed up the first time, and the remaining 300,000 feet the second trip.

RECEIVING FREIGHT.—Orders have been issued again from the office of the O. S. N. Co., to receive freight at their wharf here, for points above the Dalles. The abatement of the snow and cold, and the heavy rains which have visited Eastern Oregon within the last week, give assurance of the early resumption of navigation on the upper Columbia. The river has been very low for the past month, but the rains will materially augment the volume of water. Boats will probably begin to run in the course of a week, if the present weather continues.

CREWS OBTAINED.—Last week the masters of the vessels Rhone and Sarah Scott were in the city for the purpose of obtaining crews. Both those vessels have been detained at Astoria for more than two weeks, in consequence of not being able to procure seamen. The two Captains succeeded in hiring a sufficient number of men, and proceeded with them down to Astoria. It is probable that the Rhone and Scott have passed out to sea ere this, if the condition of the bar would admit of vessels crossing.

STATE WORK FINISHED.—A number of the printers engaged on the State work at Salem since last fall, before the meeting of the Legislature, returned to this city yesterday. All the State work, we learn, has been completed for the present. Work on the new Code will not be commenced for some months to come. The revision and codification of the laws are now in the hands of the Commission, and the manuscript will not be ready for the printers before the 1st of July next.

WASHINGTON COUNTY COURT.—Our regular Hillsboro correspondent furnishes the following proceedings, in probate, of the County Court, Judge T. D. Humphrey presiding:

In the matter of the estate of T. G. Naylor, deceased; ordered by the court that $40 per month be allowed the widow and minor children, in addition to property set aside, amounting to $1,300.

In the matter of the estate of McCain, ordered that defendant be allowed until Friday to file answer.

DEBATING SOCIETY.—The East Portland Debating Society is reported to be in a prosperous condition, the membership numbering over 20. Regular meetings are held every Friday evening. The question for discussion at the next weekly meeting will be: "Resolved, That mankind are more indebted to the Christian religion than to all other influences combined." A lively interest is being awakened among the members by the discussions of the society.

NO QUORUM.—The only members present last evening at the East Portland Board of Trustees were Garrigan, McMillan and Vancleave. No quorum being present the Board stands adjourned until next Monday evening.

A Ehman builds neat and substantial cottage houses, hard finished, for $650. Prices for story and a half and two story houses reasonable in proportion. Plans of houses on hand. Inquire at 105 First street, opposite postoffice.

FOURTH STREET BRIDGE.—Fourth street, between J and L, East Portland, has been temporarily closed against travel. An order was issued several weeks ago by the Board of Trustees, authorizing the Committee on Streets and Public Property to have some necessary repairs made to the bridge which crosses Asylum Creek at that street. Work was begun on the bridge a few weeks ago, and travel is consequently prohibited until the repairs close.

HUNTING FOR CREWS.—Active seamen seem a scarce commodity among sailing masters. The Captains of the Victoria Cross and Caribou were in the city last week endeavoring to obtain crews. Efforts in that direction have proven unsuccessful as yet, and it is more than likely that the masters will be compelled to rely wholly on the seamen which will arrive on the next steamer from San Francisco.

ANNUAL REPORTS FILED.—Mr. R. J. Ladd, School Clerk for District No. 1., has completed his annual reports for the year. In conformity with law he has filed one of the reports with Mr. Chief, Superintendent of Common Schools for Multnomah county, and one with the Secretary of State. A third copy of the report will be submitted to the Board of School Directors on the 7th of next month.

OFFICIATED.—The Rev. Mr. Antrobus, Chaplain of the British man-of-war Scout, preached at St. Stephen's Chapel, Sunday morning, and assisted at the service at Trinity Church in the evening. The Scout is at Honolulu waiting orders to return to Victoria, having found all things quiet on the assumption of the Government by the new King.

POST OFFICES.—The following new postoffices have recently been established in this State: Miller, Linn county; Warm Springs, Wasco county. Coos River, Coos county; Wallamet Slough, Multnomah county, Sam's Valley, Jackson county, Brownsborough, Jackson county; Powell's Valley, Multnomah county; Sandy, Clackamas county.

DIVINE SERVICE.—Rev. A. L. Lindsley, D. D., will preach this evening in the basement of the Presbyterian Church at 7 o'clock, and on Thursday evening at 7 o'clock will deliver a preparatory lecture to his Church and congregation.

BURNISHING.—The Armorer was busily engaged yesterday in burnishing up the muskets at the Armory Hall, which will be used to day in the decoration of the Skating Rink for the grand concert and ball to be given this evening.

ATTENDANCE.—There are now in regular attendance at the St. Helen's Hall, about 100 pupils. At the Bishop Scott Grammar School 75 pupils are in regular attendance.

LADIES' RELIEF SOCIETY.—The usual meeting of the "Ladies Relief Society" will take place today at 2 o'clock.

Patent self rolling shades, fine oil painted shades, lace curtains and cornices. Work done reasonably and satisfactory at Paul Richter's.

The building season has not yet been inaugurated.

Farmers will soon be in the midst of spring seeding.

Keep your umbrella handy, as it is needed at any moment.

Repair your costume and marque for the Turn Verein carnival.

Lively preparations are being made to celebrate St. Patrick's Day.

The frame of the large warehouse on the east side is nearly all raised.

Rosebuds are beginning to swell in anticipation of the early coming of the spring.

We are inclined to think there will be an increase in the volume of water in the Wallamet.

You will be astonished when you go to the rink to night. The decorations are simply elaborate.

Lager beer is sold in many places at five cents per glass, and is profitable to the dispenser at that.

Young ladies who believe in "beauty sleep" receive no callers after 9 o'clock in the evening. As they sensibly say, "We're out till all hours almost every night, and when we are at home we want to get a little sleep."

Seven flags have been obtained at Vancouver to decorate the Skating Rink for the ball this evening, each 60x30 feet. Besides these, all the ensigns from the ships in port have been procured, and all the available flags of the city.

The total number of legal voters in School District No. 1, according to the annual report of Mr. Ladd, the Clerk, are 1,630. The total valuation of school property is estimated at $91,000—$40,000 for buildings, and $51,000 for real estate.

A young friend of ours whenever he wishes to remember anything, particularly in the morning, always turns a photograph face to the wall before retiring, and usually spends the greater part of the next day pondering over the problem what the mischief it was he wanted to remember.

A family residing in the upper part of the city were startled the other night by a tremendous crying of boys and rattling at their front door. The gentleman rushed to the scene of action, in time to catch the remark of a retreating figure to the effect that he "thought them door mats didn't look like our's."

AMUSEMENTS.

The announcement elsewhere will explain fully the arrangements made by the Turn Verein for the grand Masquerade to take place next Monday evening. Tickets are out and can be obtained of the committee. The affair promises to be the grandest of the kind ever projected in this city. Many persons have signified their intention of appearing in costume and in all probability the number on the dancing floor will exceed one hundred and fifty masqueraders. The rink will be appropriately decorated for the occasion. Read the advertisement elsewhere, from which you will receive all the information necessary to complete your education in that direction. We shall refer to the carnival again ere the affair comes off.

Extensive arrangements are being made by the members of Baker Post, G. A. R., for the grand concert and ball which will be given at the Skating Rink under the auspices of that organization. The large Rink has been elaborately decorated with flags, ensigns, etc., and profusely bristling with cannon, muskotry, swords, etc., all arranged in a pleasing, artistic manner. No effort has been spared by the Committee on Decoration to make the interior of the commodious building equal in appearances, if not excel in all the details of good taste, effect, and general distribution of the beautiful and picturesque, that of any other ball room in the city on previous occasions. The splendid 21st Infantry Band has been secured and will furnish choice music for the occasion. The performance will open with a grand vocal concert, which will be interspersed with some of the productions of the great masters, by the band. At the conclusion of the concert, the room will be cleared and dancing commence. This portion of the programme will be kept up until four o'clock. Refreshments will be served at the hall to the guests at any time when desired. The object of the ball is to raise funds for Decoration Day, in May next. Aside from the claims of such a laudable object, the occasion promises to be one of the great social events of the season.

Some one having written to an English conservative journal that Goldwin Smith had renounced the articles of his faith in the Colonial system, which created such a stir in England a year or two since, that gentleman writes to the London Daily News:

The aim of our Colonial policy should be, as in the eyes of the best generation of British statesmen it was, the gradual development of the Colonies into nations. This conviction has been strengthened by my residence in a colony. Continued dependence upon Downing street appears to me to be clearly shocking the growth of Canadian nationality, and preparing the way for annexation.

The Boston Advertiser of February 15th, says:

The internal revenue bureau is preparing for issue in a few days a circular to all assessors and assistant assessors, directing them to close out their offices and turn over their official effects May 20th to collectors, as provided for by the consolidation bill passed early in the session. Assessments for April are to be made out as usual, and the transfer of the office to the collector must not be delayed longer than the 20th of the subsequent month. The total receipts of revenue for the current fiscal year are not thus far quite up to the estimate.

The mortality report of New York for 1872 contains some very suggestive and alarming figures. There has been a large increase in the death rate, the total number of deaths being 5,500 more than during any previous year. Nearly one-half of all the deaths of the year were those of children under five years of age. The statement that there was no execution during the year explains why the number of homicides reached so high a figure as sixty-nine.

To fill your larder with the best and at the same time economize in the distribution of cash for the same, is something that few people understand how to manage. If you wish to attain these desired objects the proper way to do will be to call on Charley Martin, a man who can "dish up" anything in his particular line to the satisfaction of the oldest inhabitant. You can bet every time on that. He is in the Grocery business, of course that is understood, at the northeast corner of Yamhill and First streets.

Perils of the Season.

The inhospitable winds and chilly fogs of spring are unwelcome visitors to the feeble and ailing, and are by no means conducive to the healthy. If there is any germ of disease lurking in the system, they are sure to develop it, unless proper precautions are taken to prevent such a misfortune. Bitters complaints, dyspepsia, nervous debility, rheumatism, irregularities of the bowels, and disorders which affect the kidneys, are all aggravated by the peculiar condition of the atmosphere at this season. Invalids who are subject to any of those disorders, or have a predisposition thereto, should therefore forearm themselves against danger by strengthening the digestive organs, the nervous system and the muscular fibre with daily doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. There is no period of the year at which a stimulating tonic and regulating medicine is more urgently required than in the spring, and those famous preparation of that class in which so many valuable restorative and preventive properties are combined in such a perfectly safe and harmless form as in Hostetter's Bitters. It may be stated positively, as an uncontradictable fact, that a course of this agreeable vegetable specific, commenced now and continued through the spring months, will effectually shield the inhabitants of marshy and miasmatic localities from the intermittent and remittent fevers caused by unhealthy exhalations from a wet soil.

This wonderful vegetable restorative is the sheet-anchor of the feeble and debilitated. As a tonic and cordial for the aged and languid it has no equal among stomachics. In all climates, tropical, temperate or frigid, it acts as a specific in every species of disorder which undermines the bodily strength and breaks down the animal spirits.

To the Queen.

In the forthcoming edition of Tennyson's works this poem forms the epilogue to "The Idyls of the King."

O loyal to the royal in thyself,
And loyal to thy land, as this to thee—
Bear witness that remembrable day,
When, pale as yet, and lover warm the Prince
Who scarce had plucked his flickering life again
From half way down the shadow of the grave,
Passed with thee thro' thy people and their love,
And London roll'd one tide of joy thro' all
Her trebled millions, and loud leagues of man
And welcome witness, how, the city cry,
The prayer of many a race and creed, and clime—
Thunderless lightnings striking under sea
From sunset and sunrise of all thy realm,
And that true North, whereof we lately heard
A strain to shame us, "Keep you to yourselves,
So loyal is too costly! friends—your love
Is but a burthen; loose the bond, and go!"
Is this the tone of empire? here the faith
That made us rulers? this, indeed, her voice
And meaning, whom the roar of Hougomont
Left mightiest of all peoples a wider throne?
What shock has fooled her since, that she should speak
So feebly? wealthier—wealthier—hour by hour!
The voice of Britain, or a sinking land,
Some third rate isle half-lost among her seas?
There rang her voice, when the full fifty peal'd
Thro' the world, "Earth's mightiest queen am I."
Are loyal to her own far sons, who love
Her ocean-empire with her boundless homes
For ever-broadening England, and her throne
In our vast Orient, and one great tie, one tie
That knows not low nor greatness, if she knows
And dreads it we are fallen——but thou my Queen,
Not for itself, but thro' thy living love
Is come to whom I made it or his grave
Severe, and absolute Decree of war with Soul
Rather than that gray king, whose name, a ghost,
Streams like a cloud, man shaped, from mountain peak,
And clothes to calm and cromlech still, or him
Of Gandhara built on Mithra's law,
Zoroaster's by the additional finger of a thumb
That hovers war and wantonness,
And crownings and dethronements: take withal
Thy poet's blessing, and his trust that Heaven
Will allow the tempest in the distance back
From thine and ours: for some are scared, who mark,
Or windy or unwieldy, signs of storm,
Waverings of every vane with every wind,
And wordy trucklings to the transient hour,
And fierce and careless foreigners of the faith,
And loftiness standing storm of simple life,
Or Cowardice, the child of lust for gold,
Or Labor, with a groan and not a voice,
Or Art, with poisonous honey stolen from France,
And that which knows, but careful for itself
And that which knows not, ruling that which knows
To ill own harm; the goal of this great world
Lies beyond sight; yet—if our slowly-grown
And crowned Republic's crowning common sense,
That saved her many times, not fail—their form
Are nothing if not continuous in the main:
That cast them, not those gloomier which forego
The darkness of that battle in the West,
Where all of high and holy dies away.

American and British Credit.

The London Economist says the following extraordinary statements are found in the report of an examination of Mr. Boutwell, before the committee of Ways and Means at the close of the session of Congress last summer:

Mr. Maynard—What are 5-20 bonds worth to-day in New York?

Mr. Cooke—Just about par in gold.

Mr. Maynard—What are they worth now in London?

Mr. Boutwell—Just the same. They would be quoted in London at about 91.

Mr. Maynard—The British consol is worth about 91¼ or 92. Why does it go into the market bearing a lower rate of interest than our bonds? and do you think, in view of this fact, it is worth while for us to go into the market with any more bonds until our credit has appreciated beyond what it now is?

Mr. Boutwell—Our credit is to-day better than the credit of any other Government in the markets generally; better than that of England. The price of consols is due not to the value of English credit, for they do not sell on the continent at all. All trust funds in England are by law placed in consols, and the quantity of such funds in Great Britain is enormous. All money passing through the insolvency courts and probate courts is put into consols.

Mr. Maynard—Do you mean us to understand, in the broadest significance of the expression, that the credit of our Government is better to-day than that of any Government in Europe?

Mr. Boutwell—Yes; I mean to say that.

Mr. Maynard—And that four per cent. American bonds would be worth more than the four per cents of any European country?

Mr. Boutwell—Yes. English consols do not sell out of Great Britain.

The statement of Mr. Boutwell, that the credit of the United States securities is "better than that of any other Government—better than that of England," is certainly a novel piece of intelligence, and very remarkable in its character, considering the official position of the speaker. The following figures tell a very different story:—

United States, 5 per cent.	100
Consols, 3 per cent.	92
India, 5 per cent.	110
India, 4 per cent.	102
Canada, 6 per cent.	102
New South Wales, 5 per cent	106
South Australia, 5 per cent	106

We have here the India 5 per cent. stock ten per cent. higher than the United States 5 per cents, and the superiority holds good in the cases of Canada and Australia. The farther statement that the price of consols is maintained hose by any law which compels all trust funds to be invested in them is simply a delusion; so also is the meaning implied in the answer that consols do not sell out of Great Britain. It is not easy to understand what Mr. Boutwell means by this expression. If he means that consols are not a security available to the bearer, and that therefore they are not largely dealt in abroad, he is to a certain extent right, although the growth of the amount of "consol certificates" which are available to bearer is not unimportant. But if he means to imply -as seems most probable—that consols are not dealt in out of Great Britain, because foreigners have some misgivings about the quality of the security itself, we cannot but pity the state of mind into which Mr. Boutwell has fallen, and still more deeply pity the country which has such a man for its finance minister.

One of Gen. Jackson's Speeches.

A correspondent gives to the Hopkinsville New Era the following as a speech made by Gen. Jackson, when he was yet a poor backwoods lawyer in Tennessee and unknown to fame: "He was employed to prosecute a negro for the murder of another in a fit of jealousy, and his speech to the jury was the following paragraph: 'No more shall the voice of the poor murdered man be heard in the songs of the merry corn huskings. No more shall he pluck the snowy cotton ball. No more shall the forest resound with the echoes of his hunting horn, as with his dogs he chased the 'possum and the coon. No more shall his nimble feet keep time to the music of the banjo as he patted juba and cut the pigeon wing. That voice once so joyful is now hushed in death. Those limbs once so agile are now rigid and still. His body now lies upon the blood-stained turf, with his big toe pointing up to the blue arched vault of Heaven.'"

The preparations for the forthcoming inauguration ceremonies are being conducted on the most liberal and extensive scale. The indications are that it will be the grandest display ever witnessed in Washington. There will be present about 30 different military organizations from various parts of the country. Each with its band of music, and with the West Point and Naval Cadets, will make a display never before witnessed in this country. In order to overcome the many inconveniences heretofore connected with inauguration balls, the largest ball building ever erected in this country is now in process of construction. It is 325 feet in length and 150 feet in width, with a supper-room the whole length, which will be supplied by one of the most celebrated New York caterers.

The total number of bills introduced in the House of Representatives during the present Congress is 3,950, and in the Senate 1,610. Perhaps not more than one-eighth of these will become laws; the remainder fail with the expiration of Congress. The Pension and Indian Appropriation bills have received the approval of the President. The Deficiency Appropriation bill will soon be reported to the House. The other general appropriation bills are in a state of forwardness, and may all be passed this week. There are on the Speaker's table 75 Senate and House bills with amendments waiting action. The Senate is similarly crowded, having in addition to others of importance, the House bill for the distribution of the Geneva award.

In Missouri the edifying spectacle of a whole legislature defiling in solid phalanx before the clerk's desk and depositing their railroad passes for ninety days, has just been witnessed, and yet some of these pure men are accused of selling their votes to Mr. Bogy.

Finance and Commerce.

Financial.

Monday Evening, March 3, 1873.

Gold in New York to-day, 112¼.

Portland Legal Tender rates, 89c buying, 90c selling.

Gold bars are quotable at 800 fine.

Wheat in Liverpool—11s 7d@11s 10d, club 12s 4d@12s6d.

The News commenting on financial transactions in New York during the week ending February 14th says:

"The bidding for the $1,500,000 Treasury Gold at noon on the 20th amounted to $8,114,000. There were no less than thirty offers. The awards were at 112⅞ per cent, or within a slight fraction of the Stock Exchange figure. The sales in the open market subsequently advanced to 112⅞ per cent. The Cash Gold is not very scarce, yet sufficiently so to enable the Gold speculators in the Gold Room to carry over their balances at nominal rates of interest.

The explanations of the firmness in Gold are to some out of doors the speculation in the Room. The importers are paying in the week at the rate of $700,000 per day for Customs. This amount is drawn, for the most part, every day out of the banks.

Assuming $400 as the probable total of Gold thus paid into the Treasury for the week, and $1,560,000 sold out of the Treasury for the week, the difference (less a moderate amount paid out for gold interest on the Public Debt) is $2,340,000. The effect upon the bank averages of Saturday next is expected to be considerable. The Currency to be paid into the Treasury to-morrow for the Gold sold to-day is, momentarily, against the Money Market, but it seems quite certain from the reported light Currency balances in the Treasury, at all points, that the money will soon be disbursed again.

The Iron Market.

The latest mail advices from the Eastern cities concur in the Iron Market are to the following effect:

The market for Scotch pig continues quiet but firm. There is considerable inquiry for Iron for immediate brands, and a good business is reported. Nothing is done during the closing of navigation. Holders generally are asking very full prices, as the advices from the other side continue to note the increased cost of the article on account of the continued strikes and the increased price of coal, which has nearly doubled in a short time past. Also that only 67 furnaces are in blast out of 132 in the vicinity of Glasgow through which causes iron cannot be laid down here except at a cost above the prices now ruling here. The sales are confined almost entirely to the jobbing par cels at very full figures, the market still having an upward tendency. The sales are several small lots Gartsherrie at $50, now held for $60, and 100 do Coltness $62 50; we quote Eglinton $55, Glengarnock $58, and Gartsherrie $60, 400 tons Elinton are held at Philadelphia for $54. American pig is firm at $50 for No 1, while No 2 is weak at $45, though 100 tons sold at this figure. The high prices of Scotch iron have turned the attention of the trade somewhat to No. 1 American, which brand, most makers now favor to a small extent, and consequently less No. 2 is taken in part. We understand that contracts for all that can be had at less than $50 for No 1 have been made, and from the present outlook, holders expectis further advance in prices. The market for manufactured goods has as yet not responded to the advance in the raw material to any great extent, but prices must necessarily advance to not a profit to be done. The only sales besides those noted above, are 200@$50 tons gray forge at $42. There is no demand for new English rails and they may be quoted nominally at $72@74, gold while are generally firmly held at $52@55 gold, and 60@ currency, though offers of 250 tons old T is reported at $52 currency and 500 do on terms not made public. New American are quiet at about $80 currency at the mills in Pennsylvania. Scrap is generally held from yards at $35 @36, and we understand that but little can be had except at the higher figure; 300 tons sold on private terms. Refined bar is steady at bar quotations for job lots from store. Sheet is quiet.

Our market has ruled quite steady during the winter season, and the usual amount of business has been done, which, of course, is not to excite. The future is quite encouraging to holders, and some of our dealers now have quite large stocks on hand.

Wheat Market and Crops.

The bulk of that part of last year's crop of this cereal which will not be held over, having mostly passed into second hands, the prospects which affect the product likely to be harvested the present year, are now being quite extensively commented on in commercial circles as well as among the producers of the country at large. The injury to the wheat crop in Great Britain last season, and to which great publicity was given everywhere, had the effect to draw out the surplus of all grain-growing countries, and to greatly stimulate prices, and we find the quantity of wheat in sight is larger than at this time last year. This doubtless exerts a conservative influence, and checks the inclination so noticeable early in the season to purchase to hold, and the impression was very general that much higher prices must prevail, and it is very apparent to all intelligent merchants that the reasons that those convictions were based upon are unchanged, and are just as true now as during the autumn; indeed, the failure of the crop in Europe and of the winter crop is fully confirmed, but whatever supplies grain-growing countries had have mainly been drawn out, and this will be more apparent as the season advances. A careful examination of the reports from the winter wheat-growing States of the stocks in the hands of farmers and we come to the conclusion that they hold one-quarter or one-third of the last crop. In Wisconsin, Illinois, and Iowa, about one-eighth to one-quarter of the crop of spring, and in Minnesota fully one-half; in a portion of the State they hold more than half the crop, in others less, and the quality of the wheat is far better than in the States south of it. Much of the hardness at the Northwest is with the Southern States, and it is very plain to all that much of their surplus will be diverted from the seaboard, and it is also very certain that our surplus for export will prove less than we had hoped for in October. From Europe our advices are much of the same character as published for some weeks past. The importations have been fair, chiefly from San Francisco.

Miscellaneous.

The year 1872 will long be remembered (says the British Review) as one of the most disastrous for shipping in the Northern Hemisphere that has ever been experienced, and it is only to be expected that the casualty of collision should bear its proportion. On the British coast alone the number last month far exceeded the total of any month ever before recorded, whilst in the North Sea, Baltic and American coasts, the proportion is even greater.

The stock of sperm oil in first hands in the United States is now reduced to about 9,000 barrels, against 13,500 barrels at this time last year, but arrivals are daily expected, several shipments being about due from Panama and the Indian Ocean, and a number of sperm whalers may be looked for shortly.

The stock of whale oil in first hands in the country is now only 13,000 barrels, against 30,000 barrels one year ago. Of the stock 11,000 barrels, all owned in Boston is held by three parties.

All the catch of whalebone in the Arctic last season by American vessels has arrived in Boston and in New York except one parcel of 9,000 pounds In this connection may be stated a fact which works to the detriment of importers of whalebone. The duty on horn, of 30 per cent., which is used to a large extent as a substitute for whalebone, and more especially during the past year, on account of the extreme price of bone caused by the loss of the Arctic fleet, was taken off about a year ago, upon representations made at Washington that no horn was cut in this country, it being done in Germany. This brings horn in direct competition with whalebone, and it is now largely used.

From Mr. Holmath Schwartz's Wool Trade Current dated Jan. 23d, "The arrivals for the first series of London sales of colonial wool, which is to commence on the 13th of February, comprise up to date 51,400 bales, which quantity may easily be doubled within the next three weeks if the wind be favorable. Since the close of the November-December series, the market has experienced no noteworthy change. A good demand for wool prevailed during the last weeks of 1872, but the new year has brought a quiet business. Some sales, however, are made at current prices, and the tone remains firm on the whole."

During the week ending February 11th the coffee market at the East ruled very quiet generally, partly caused by the conflicting ideas of buyers and sellers, and partly by a want of desirable stock Among those who have any real knowledge upon which to base an opinion, the belief is universal that very high prices must rule, and jobbers accordingly are more ready to buy than sell. Rios are again manifesting an advancing tendency, and from the reports received from all parts these cannot be lower for some months. The relatively high price of Rios has led to an increased demand for other grades, especially in the northern section of the country, where Javas and Ceylons are still relatively very low, and there is room for a considerable advance, which undoubtedly will come sooner or later.

FLOUR—The supply is rather increasing, but prices continue to rule steady at $5 50 ₩ bbl for Extra of Standard brands, $4 50@5 00 for outside, and $4 for Superfine

OATS—The supply of oats on hand is quite adequate to present demands, though our quotations of 60c ₩ bushel are firm, and no inclination to a decline is noticed, holders rather expecting a rise

LARD—The market is quiet but with a little better demand. We quote at 11@12c ₩ lb in tins, and 10@11 in kegs.
